

You Make the Rules

You have been called upon to create the rules for guiding civil discourse and decision-making for the local school board. As you draft your own rules for guiding civil discourse and decision-making, discuss the following questions with your group:

- How would you make sure multiple interests and perspectives are considered?
- How would you make sure everyone had an opportunity to speak?
- How would you ensure everyone was focused on the discussion?
- How would you tackle really difficult questions?
- How would you handle sensitive information?
- How would you make final decisions? And how would you make them fair?
